MARRIAGE.

A Soldier must not marry without first obtaining his Commanding Officer's written sanction, otherwise, although the marriage may be legal, he can never have any claim to be borne on the married establishment of his Corps.

A large proportion of Staff and Regimental Sergeants is allowed on the married roll, also 3 per cent of the Trumpeters, Drummers, and Rank and File who have completed Seven Years' Service, are in possession of at least two good conduct badges, and have at least £5 in the Army or Post Office Savings' Bank. When a regiment goes to India the proportion of married men permitted to embark is increased.
